Lee Wardlaw swears that her first spoken word was 'kitty'. Since then, she's shared her life with 30 cats (not all at the same time!) and published close to 30 award-winning children's books, which have sold over a million copies worldwide. Lee has a B.A. in Education, an AMI Primary Diploma from the Montessori Institute of San Diego, and will receive her M.Ed. from Loyola University, Maryland in 2013. She is a vivacious speaker with 30+ years experience presenting at schools, libraries, conferences and bookstores. Lee has a genuine rapport with students of all ages, and is able to change the complexity and style of her programs to best suit the needs of each audience. Lee lives in Santa Barbara with her husband, teenage son and three former shelter cats.
